Evaluating Sources with the Five Ws

Often finding information is less of a problem than figuring out whether that information will be appropriate for your projec t.

One way to decide whether a source is "good" for your project or not is to begin by asking some questions about the source.

Remember!